

Garci not in Malaysia, either

By Tina G. Santos

FORMER ELECTION COMMISSIONER Virgilio Garcillano is not hiding in Malaysia.

This reported Dato Mangos Bin Ismael, chief of the Royal Malaysia Police, to the National Bureau of Investigation.

"We have informed all the local police stations to conduct investigation. So far, we have not been able to detect the presence of the personality," Ismael said in his Sept. 5 letter addressed to NBI Director Reynaldo Wycooc.

But Ismael assured the bureau that "we view the matter seriously and we will continue our investigation."

He added that he would immediately inform the NBI officials of any development.

The NBI sought the assistance of the Malaysian police in the hunt for Garcillano, who was reportedly sighted in different places in Malaysia, particularly in Labuan and Kota Kinabalu.

Earlier, the United States

immigration authorities also told the Philippine consulate in New York City that they had no record of Garcillano entering the US, after Sen. Aquilino Pimentel claimed Garcillano was sighted in New Jersey.

He was also reported to have fled to London via Singapore.

Garcillano is believed to be the man President Macapagal-Arroyo was talking to in the "Hello Garci" tapes discussing alleged fraud in the 2004 presidential election.

The President has admitted talking to an election official, whom she did not identify but she has denied any wrongdoing.

Over 150 killed in Baghdad blasts

BAGHDAD—A suicide bomber targeted a crowd of Shiite day laborers in their minivan and blew it up in Baghdad on Wednesday, killing 114 people and wounding more than 156 in Iraq's second deadliest bombing since the war began.

UN Assembly a weakened summit

UNITED NATIONS—THE UN General Assembly approved a watershed declaration on development, human rights, terrorism and global security on Tuesday by adoption of the world body's 50th anniversary communique.

The meeting of world leaders is intended to encourage the United Nations to take the fight against poverty and environmental destruction, and make the upcoming conference more effective in tackling the 21st century threats of terrorism and the spread of infectious diseases.

But negotiators failed to agree on how to tackle another problem: how to do a distribution of resources sought by Western nations, and they fell short of commitments to greater aid and increasing down trade barriers. —Ann Hagedorn, Washington

FAA warned about al-Qaida threat in 1998

WASHINGTON—American Airlines officials were repeatedly told early in 2000 that al-Qaida-linked terrorism had a high probability of striking the jetliner industry, according to a report released by the Sept. 11 commission.

The official declassified records before Sept. 11 reveal that one of the more urgent warnings went to the jetliners, but failed to prompt security steps.

Federal Reserve Administration officials said in December 2000 in a report prepared for the agency that airport security "likely to be one of the most serious threats to the nation's security."

Wanted: men for our times

CONSIDERING THE PRESENT POLITICAL scenario, it is not too far-fetched to expect our leaders of Thomas Peters' "There are the citizens that you need's" would be the same our country needs:

- men who cannot be bought
- whose word is their bond
- who put themselves above wealth
- who possess optimism and a will
- who are larger than their machines
- who do not hesitate to take chances
- who will not use their authority to a loved
- who will be honest in small things as in greatness
- who will look to cooperate with us
- whose authority are not limited to their own little domain
- who will not say they do it "for us."

Clarifications on 'untrained' journalists

WE WOULD LIKE TO THANK THE INQUIRY for contacting the issue of ethics violations, which we believe is linked to the issue of press freedom in the country.

We would like to mention to make a few clarifications on the story "Only some 14,000 media men are 'trained' journalists," (INQ, 9/4/02).

The study which was released by the Center for Media Freedom and Responsibility in a press conference last Sept. 5, only focused on the 20 journalists killed in the line of duty between 1980 and 2000. It did not look closely into the background of the 14 who were killed between 1980 and 1999. In any of 14 had no access to training in journalism, as we have pointed out. (2) We have no credible data on those killed prior to 2000. (3) We fully intended to state "formal college education" and not the informal training they might have received.

through the institution by legal education in law and other fields.

We are sorry we cannot cite the survey report mentioned by the article and to avoid confusing the readers. We appreciate your effort to inform the public about the plight and concern of our fellow journalists.

'Sleeping' Supreme Court cases

I AGREE WITH MORAN. JUSTICE JESONIA Cruz's suggestion that the Supreme Court "can't seem to do many cases well sleeping" in its docket "instead of busily exhibiting their audacity" by writing concurring opinions that "never really stop on the case, but are inevitably quotable" (INQ, 8/27/02).

As I was reading Cruz's column, I could not help but wonder what happened to the "Gallo, Calalang, Lagana" former case that was the subject of a recent issue of the Manila Bulletin (JUL. 4/1/02). As I was joining the Supreme Court building in about 10 a.m. of Aug. 26, I read a headline by a group holding a picket in front of it. The headline stated that the Supreme Court has now received the last-minute notice for reconsideration of the March 15, 2000 second decision, although the former bench-marker insisted and the subsequent general bench decided that the case was on the merits. It stated that the second decision was unanimously decided by the members of the Special Five Division and who involved on second motion for reconsideration. Thus, I don't see any reason why the case has not been resolved with finality in this day.

What's the cause of the delay? The Special Five Division majority seems to be composed of justices who judge accept briefs. (JUL. 4/1/02) I don't think Supreme Court accepts except briefs. But an early resolution of the Cruz-Garcera case will surely help ending the Supreme Court docket and clear any doubt on the integrity of the Supreme Court justices.

Church urges probe of '04 polls also said it was time for the country to move forward, warning "excessive politicking" had caused divisions in the country and worsened the drift toward poverty. The council did not specify how the search for truth should be conducted. The prelates said it was up to the people to decide this.

The election watchdog of the 119-member CBCP said in its statement that it was dismayed by the scuttling of the impeachment complaints on technicalities.

"The people's right to know the truth is the essence of any rule of law," the PPCRV said.

Uncovering the truth should actually be to the President's liking considering her dwindling popularity and credibility, it said.

"It is therefore in the best interest of any government official to clarify any allegation in order to regain this trust, the PPCRV said."

CBCP faction

A Church insider said the permanent council's statement "more or less" reflected key suggestions of a militant faction of the CBCP that gathered in Manila before the prelates' policy-making group sat down for four hours on Tuesday to consider the implications of the killing of the impeachment complaints in Congress.

The faction, assembled by a former top CBCP official, was pushing for Ms Arroyo's greater accountability while urging politicians to address the serious problem of poverty, the source said.

Bishop Socrates Villegas of Bataan, a close associate of Cardinal Sin, also said yesterday that Ms Arroyo must be held accountable for the nation's political turmoil.

Villegas said forgiveness should not be the end to Ms Arroyo's July apology for phoning an election official during the 2004 elections, a move she had described as a "lapse in judgment." However, she denied manipulating the vote.

Speaking in Filipino in a strongly worded homily at the Balanga Cathedral, Villegas said the President was accountable under the laws of God and that many questions surrounding last year's elections remained unanswered.

Politics of accommodation

It was the first time that Villegas spoke out against Ms Arroyo since the release of the "Hello, Garci" tapes in June that triggered the worst political crisis of her 4-year-old presidency.

Unknown to many, Villegas went to Malacañang in July and told the embattled President that it was time for her to go, at least two highly reliable sources had told the INQUIRER in separate interviews.

In his homily, the prelate lamented what he called the "politics of accommodation" that continued under the Arroyo administration.

"Reforms in government following the norms of morality are being ignored by the President," he said. "Patronage politics continues for the few at the expense of the greater number."

Picking up the theme from the latest CBCP statement, Villegas said jobs and alleviation of poverty were more important in the countryside than the political squabbles involving the rich and the powerful in Manila.

"Hunger and intense poverty are driving the people away from politics, not because they are less patriotic," Villegas said. "Let us search for the truth in the last election but let us not pretend to be blind to the reality of hunger and poverty, he added."

Also yesterday, Vice President Noli de Castro said Filipinos should heed the bishops' declaration that the search for truth should continue "through peaceful, legal and constitutional means." With a report from Cynthia D. Balana ing a vacation to the Philippines, according to court documents.

The boys were identified through a joint investigation by US Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents and the Philippine National Police.

The ruling came a day after another San Diego man, who made a sex tape with a teenage girl while visiting the Philippines in 2002, was sentenced to three years in federal prison.

Bernard Lawrence Russell, 38, was ordered to pay $25,000 to "benefit Filipino victims of child exploitation," under a plea agreement in San Diego federal court.

A San Diego judge ordered Russell to stay away from children, give up his passport and have his telephone and computer use monitored.

Russell admitted in April that he traveled to the Philippines in 2002 with the intent to have sex with a child.

Two girls

Two girls, ages 13 and 14, said Russell paid them $30 and $20, respectively, to have sex, according to court documents.

Authorities also seized 32 images of child pornography during a search of Russell's home in 2003.

Datan's case was prosecuted under the Protect Act of 2003, which boosted penalties for such crimes and made it easier for federal prosecutors to bring charges in sex tourism cases.

"In the 10 years prior to the Protect Act, there were only two cases prosecuted," said Virginia Kice, spokesperson of the Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE).

"Since then, we've had 14 child sex tourism cases involving individuals, a number of them in Southern California."

Datan, a retired auditor, was arrested last Nov. 24 at Los Angeles International Airport by US Customs and Border Protection officers after returning from a two-month trip to the Philippines, his native country. A search of his luggage turned up hundreds of sexually explicit images of underage boys.

The day following Datan's arrest, ICE agents obtained a federal warrant to search his San Diego home where they seized Datan's collection of child pornography, including more than a dozen boxes of images of child erotica and child pornography.

"Those who trade in the exploitation of children should no longer expect distance or the anonymity of cyberspace to protect them," Michael Unzueta, special agent-in-charge of ICE investigations in San Diego, said in a news release last Nov. 19.

"ICE is using all of its law enforcement authorities to combat this heinous behavior both here and abroad," Unzueta said.

Dance troupe?

When ICE agents questioned Datan about the images, he said the boys were part of a Filipino dance troupe he knew through friends, according to the case affidavit. Datan said he often attended the boys' performances and stayed at a nearby hostel.

He added that the boys from the troupe would come to his hostel room following their shows to visit and shower, but he denied having any inappropriate sexual contact with them.

Datan pleaded guilty in March to engaging in illicit sexual conduct with minors and producing child pornography outside the United States.

He was sentenced in June to 17 years in federal prison and lifetime supervision.

Under an agreement with the US Attorney's Office and ICE, the international aid group World Vision will use the money Datan pays to provide two years of medical, psychological and occupational therapy for the teens, who were 14 and 15 when the crimes occurred.

"Every day children are sexually exploited by men from the United States in places like the Philippines, Cambodia and Costa Rica," said Joseph Mettimano, director of World Vision's child sex tourism prevention project.

"While the restitution cannot undo the damage that has been done, it will provide for much needed counseling and other services for some of the young boys assaulted," he said. Reports from AP and AFP

The Thaili decided to serve food that harked back to the past. And the past is delicious—in countless ways.

The necessary equipment for portland is the walking and the hand-lever on what is being served. If you're hand (Cassini) is used in the past, then you know that the solid walking is intended to. There is also the prime (standing) which is still used today. Then there is the Raster tool by a portable gas more connected past the

That day the flannel policy was very much unusual, giving us dinner at a place located that provided a flannel dress to end our meal. The waitress, whose job it was to do the fancy policy, were trained by a pro. Peter Flannel, who is from the Bellagio in Las Vegas, located around there, making sure that customers located on the ground floor.

Classic French

To go back to this past, fine dining experience is really to go classic French. The first course was what the menu called seafood dome. It's the Flamingo de France de Mer—shellfish like oysters, mussels and clams then with lobster and shrimp poached and served on a mound of ice. Together with the seafood was a series of sauces, and these were the:

The gathering style was recalled as a recent lunch by Christine Pirodon, general manager of the Hotel Grand Continental Shreve. He used to be the restaurant manager at Grandville, the old Shreveport bar dining restaurant that became the Pirod. He recalled cooking duck à l'orange at Grandville even if it took an hour and a half to get the duck done properly. He said it was the shrewy part of his job and joked about throwing pots and pans around as part of the act.

Re Virginia "Jumpy" G. Miranda

THIS RECIPE WAS CREATED by my late mother when I was young. The ingredients and method of cooking had remained the same through the years.

When I got married, my mother-in-law also cooked this variation and delicious Gumbo known as Tafelsa at Bayshore at Lake using the same method of cooking and ingredients as my mother.

When I was encouraged to read through the my family and relatives, I found out that my cousin was homosexual.

My mother-in-law read about this "You Might Be Cooking A Winner" in the magazine dated Sept. 8. She convinced me to submit this unique recipe, which I hope you will appreciate.

Grilled Tilapia in Garlic with Coconut Milk

- 3 pcs of tripe (medium-thick)
- 20 pcs of 1/2 tsp garlic
- 3 pcs of small onions
- 1 head of potato
- 2 glasses of coconut milk (thick) (20%)
- 2 glasses of coconut milk (normal) (approx)
- 15 c-cooking oil
- 10 tbsp porcine fat
- 2 pcs of shrimp (big)
- 20 pcs of eggplant, cut in the middle
- 10 pcs of string beans, cut into short pieces
- 1 bunch of amaranth
- 1 bunch of banana

Then the salt, covering the pills and the incisions. Sprinkle with a fine salt after 10 minutes.

Costs, efficiency and quality

Wash the grains. After removing the seeds, wash the grains in a small bowl.

Dark pods and cotyled. When they have turned slightly brown, add a little salt on both.
